DANDELIONS.

Oh, mute, wild prophets, what of life know ye,
 Of eager breath?
 'E'en as I pray, ye melt your living gold
 And, gray and hopeless on the morning breeze, Drop into death.

Oh, wayward brethren, what of earth know ye,
 What end of strife?
 Lo, as I grieve, ye bound from chilling sleep,
 Breaking the firmament of the somber globe
 With beaming life.
 —Philip Gerry in Lippincott's

THE OUTWITTING OF SORROWFUL JIM.

Allyn rode across the prairie joyously and looked longingly toward the east, where the sun was scarce an hour high. The fresh, bracing air seemed to permeate every fiber of his being, and he drew in great breaths of it, feeling a wild sort of pleasure in the mere fact of being alive.

For once in three years he was happy, and he had been in that beatific state for two whole days. The rest of the cowboys of the outfit did not know what to make of it. Causy like swore he had been "laced." For Allyn had been nicknamed by the camp Sorrowful Jim, and to see him joyously exuberant and in a gay humor was an unheard of thing until the last day or so.

Allyn had once made the mistake of considering life a very serious matter.
 Indeed, and then, after trying for a year to practice law and not getting any one to practice upon he had given it up in disgust and migrated to the home of opportunity in hope of getting rich.

During his idle hours Allyn had fallen in love, and he took that very seriously also. It went hard with him, for he had nothing on earth except a few bonds an old aunt had left him, and the revenue from them did not amount to $300 a year. At the rate his practice was not increasing Methusalem would have been a youngster compared with Allyn if he waited for the revenue from his profession to enable him to marry.

"Jim," she said, "you are acting very foolishly. What does it matter if you haven't any money? I don't want money. I've got enough, or will have when I am 24, when I get control of it. That would keep us very nicely and would hold us up until you could establish a paying practice. Now don't be silly."

"Nelly," he said solemnly, "I cannot afford to marry now. People would say that I married you for your money, and I don't intend to put myself in a position where such a motive could be imputed to me. It would be unjust to me and to you."

"Well, Jim," and there were tears in her voice, "I don't think you are acting fairly toward me. Here I am an orphan, with nobody on the earth to love except an old guardian, and I despise him. You've made me love you so that life without you will be worse than no life at all, and now you say you cannot marry me until you make what it took my father a lifetime to accumulate. Why, by that time I'll have wrinkles and maybe false teeth and glasses and be a horrid, snuffy, fussy old woman."

"No, Nelly, I don't want to make $200, 000. If I had $100,000 it would be all right. And it will not take long. Out west I will make it quickly. Just you stand fast and wait for me."

"Oh, I'll wait, but I think you are hateful and pigheaded just the same.
 Would you marry me if I hadn't any money at all?"

"Yes, gladly, and we would be happy too. You would manage somehow. But now my self respect will not allow me."

So it was that he went to make his fortune and at the same time peace with his unduly active conscience. To his utter disgust he found, after a year's prospecting, that gold mines were not at all plentiful, and that every foot of the mountains had been prospected over time and again. A year in Mexico assured him that the business of finding silver mines lying around loose had also played out long ago, and that it took lots of capital to start ranching on a paying basis.
 Funds were getting low, so he secured a place as one of the herdsmen of the XXX outfit and on account of his grave demeanor was promptly named by the other cowpunchers Sorrowful Jim. And the name stuck to him.

During all his wanderings he had written to Nelly as regularly as possible and had begun to regret in a measure his Puritanical conscience. At $40 a month and grub he did not see that a fortune was in immediate prospect.
 Absence had indeed made his heart grow fonder, and he longed for a sight of Nelly's laughing eyes and dimpled face.

Yet he would not acknowledge himself beaten or that he would give in.
 Much against his inclination he remained consumed with a desire to see her, yet impelled to remain in stiff necked pride, acting as avaricious courtier and escort for a lot of wild eyed, horned steers, all the while cursing himself for a fool. So he and the rest of the outfit did not have very much in common together, and he grew more and more unlovable and lonely.

Small wonder was it, then, that when he received a letter from her he felt that his voluntary exile was broken.
 His penance was done, and he was free to return to civilization and Nelly.

"You come on, Jim, dear," the letter said—"that is, of course, if you care to take an almost dowdier bride. I have now only enough left to bring me in $300 a year—exactly what you had. I do not own another thing on earth. I had concluded that the money without you is not worth having, and as long as you are so stubborn about it I saw that I must give in, so I have done so gladly. I have got to be 24, as you know, and have absolute control over my property. So, in order to get you, I have given away my fortune.

"You have cost me nearly $100,000, so I'm of the opinion that you had better come on and deliver yourself up as a victim. I don't propose to tell you another thing about it, as you have no right to know now. After—after—oh, well, some time I will tell you what I did with the rest of the money, but just now it is no affair of yours. You will simply have to take my word for it.
 Come on, Jim. I am anxious to see you."

So it was that Jim was so happy.
 He had only two more days to wait;
 then he would get his month's wages.
 He had $400 saved up, and he reflected that he and Nelly would manage to get along nicely on that for awhile.
 His pride was riding rampant, also,
 and his conscience was very self satisfied, indeed, for he had not held out against the allurements of beauty, wealth, position, ease—everything? It was a victory well worth rejoicing over.

The ceremony was over, the few intimate friends had taken their departure, and Jim and Nelly looked at each other in a bewildered sort of way.

"I think we ought to take a trip, Jim.
 I'm so dead tired of this place. I don't know what to do. Let's go to Europe. I've always wanted to go there."

"Nelly, are you daft? I can't afford a trip to Europe, and you know it.
 And you haven't any money either, so how are we to go?"

"I think it is very unkind of a person of your wealth to be taunting me with my poverty. For a man as rich as you, I think you are undoubtedly 'close.'" Her eyes twinkled merrily.

"I want to go to Europe, and now I've got you to go with me you ought to be glad of the opportunity."

"Nelly, dear, if I could afford it, you know I would be delighted to take you."

"Well, you can afford it."
 "I tell you I cannot."

"I know better—you can. Why, just look at these," and she handed him a bundle of books and papers. He picked up the first one and read the inside page: "First National Bank, in account with James M. Allyn. Deposited May 1, $35,000; May 9, $12,000; May 12, $12,000."

"What does this mean, Nelly?" he asked wonderingly as he looked at another book and read: "Received May 9, bonds, mortgages, stocks and securities duly transferred and assigned to James M. Allyn, and aggregating $150, 000, and more particularly described as follows: The Trust and Safe Deposit company." Nelly was hugely enjoying the situation. She seated herself on the arm of the chair and said:

"You dear old stupid, mulish, stubborn thing. I told you the truth, for I gave everything I owed to you before I wrote that letter. I told the truth, for I reserved just enough to bring me in $300 a year."

"Well, I'll be!" She kissed him and stopped the word.

"Are you going to Europe?" she asked.

"Yes, I think I would enjoy the trip myself, but don't you think you paid too much for me?"

"Oh, I don't know. Not as long as you are nice as you are now. Come let's get ready and catch the steamer leaving tomorrow evening!"

An Irishman's Ruse.
 In the pioneer days of Victoria, B. C., a Hibernian drayman, whose property abounded on to that of a merchant, was very much disgusted to find that the merchant's chickens were constantly rooting up his flowers and vegetables.

Appeals to the merchant, who was a patron of the drayman, were of no avail, so the following ruse was adopted:

Our friend from the Emerald Isle purchased some eggs and placed them here and there in his garden. He then awaited the merchant's wife, who would call the chickens to feed them, and in full view of the lady picked up the eggs and put them in his hat.

The lady asked Mike what he was doing.

"Oh, getting a few eggs for my breakfast," said he.

"Well," said the lady, "you have no chickens. The eggs are mine."

"Oh, sure are they, mum. Then what do they do in my garden? Anything on my premises is my own."

After this the fence was made chicken proof, and Mike had no more trouble.—London Tit-Bits.

A Story of Dumas.
 One day Alexandre Dumas visited Marseilles and made a trip to the Chateau d'If to visit the palace he had helped to make famous. The guide showed him everything; also the subterranean passage by which Edmond Dantes and Abbe Faria used to visit each other. "This passage was dug by Abbe Faria by the aid of a fish bone," the guide explained. "M. Dumas tells about it in his story of 'Monte-Christo.'"

"Indeed," replied the author. "Alexandre Dumas must be familiar with all the surroundings here. Perhaps you know him?"

"I should think so. He is one of my best friends."

"And you are one of his," replied the impulsive scribe, letting 2 louis d'or slip into the hand of the astonished guide.

HOW MUCH WATER?

Conclusions From the Experience of Many Irrigators.

A very interesting question in the irrigation of fruit trees is, How much water is used? It has been claimed that this question cannot be answered categorically because of the differences in exposure, soils, rainfall and in the requirements of different plants. A careful inquiry recently conducted by E. J. Wickson included the experience of scores of irrigators in different regions of the Pacific coast and disclosed the fact that the amount of water applied actually differed even more widely than the theoretical computation based upon the influence of the variable factors mentioned would indicate.
 It is found that, in addition to topography, aeolian conditions of soil and variation in plant requirements and at the same time somewhat determined by them, the factor of frequency intrudes, and upon consideration of all factors Professor Wickson arrives at these brief deductions:

First.—With adequate depth and re-tentiveness of soil 20 inches of rainfall, if duly conserved by good cultivation, may render irrigation unnecessary for deep rooting deciduous fruits.

Second.—If the rainfall on such soil is inadequate, it may be satisfactorily supplemented for such plants by winter irrigation, using a total depth of 6 to 12 inches in from one to three applications, according to the receptivity of the soil.

Third.—Also for such soils for such plants the same results can be secured by summer irrigation with from three to six inches of water, divided into two or three applications.

Fourth.—On deep, leachy soils for such plants neither heavy winter rains nor winter irrigation will suffice, and a monthly application of two or three inches of water from May to August or September may be required.

Fifth.—Even on deep, retentive soils, as well as on coarse soils, shallow rooting deciduous plants, bearing what are called "small fruits," may require fortnightly or even weekly applications amounting to four inches a month during the dry season.

Sixth.—On shallow soils of retentive character even deep rooting trees may require two inches monthly from May to August, while on shallow, coarse soils 50 per cent more water may be necessary.

Seventh.—On shallow, coarse soils shallow rooting small fruit plants may fall through heat and drought in spite of any frequent use of water, which is commercially practicable. Sprinkling and mulching may make the plants satisfactory for home use.

Eighth.—Evergreen fruit trees, including citrus fruits, require about 50 per cent more water than deciduous fruits would require under the same soil and in the same location, except that the olive will thrive with approximately the same water which satisfies a deciduous fruit tree, but it must be available later in the season, as the tree develops its fruit later.

These deductions are not intended to be indications of what is necessary to the trees. The quantities given are general statements of what is used by those who have bearing trees and secure good crops of marketable fruit.

THERE is only one way in which a plant can be forced to branch, and that is by cutting off the stalk. The plant thus interfered with will make an effort to grow, and either a new shoot will be sent up to take the place of the lost top, or several shoots will be sent out along the stalk. If but one starts cut it back. Keep up this cutting-back process until you have obliged as many branches as you think are needed. Persistence and patience will oblige the plant to do as you would like to have it do.—April Ladies' Home Journal.

AN exchange contains the following in regard to the poor, unlucky editor of a country newspaper: "The editor of a country newspaper has no business ever to get anything into his paper that people do not like. He ought to know just what would suit each individual, or he should take each item before it is published and let persons whom it concerns censor it. The editor has plenty of time to do all this; all he has to do is to hunt up news and clean rollers, set type, clean the floor, pen short items, hustle advertising, fold papers and write wrappers, make paste and mail papers, talk to visitors and distribute type, carry and read proofs and correct mistakes, hunt the shears to clip articles with, dodge the bills and dun delinquents and take the cussing and tell the subscribers he needs money. An editor has no business to make mistakes when tending to little trifles like these, and living on oatmeal flavored with imagination, wearing old shoes and no collar, a patch on the equator of his trousers, at the same time turn a smiling countenance on the man who tells him the paper is not worth the subscription price and any one could print a better one with his eyes shut."

If a cat doth meet a cat upon the garden wall, and if a cat doth greet a cat, O, need they both to squall? Every Tommy has his Tabby waiting on the wall, and yet he welcomes her approach with an unearthly yowl. And if a kitten wish to court upon the garden wall, why don't he sit and sweetly smile, and not stand up and howl, and lift his precious back up high, and show his teeth and moan as if 'twere colic more than love that made that fellow groan.—Ex.

Coated

Look at your tongue. Is it coated? Then you have a bad taste in your mouth every morning. Your appetite is poor, and food distresses you. You have frequent headaches and are often dizzy. Your stomach is weak and your bowels are always constipated. There's an old and reliable cure:

Don't take a cathartic dose and then stop. Better take a laxative dose each night, just enough to cause one good free movement the day following. You feel better the very next day. Your appetite returns, your dyspepsia is cured, your headaches pass away, your liver acts well, and your bowels no longer give you trouble.

THE OBSERVER.

The Argonaut.

The Argonaut is always interesting—always has something to say and says it well, so that its readers were prepared for something unusually good in the "publisher's spring number," issued last week. As the name suggests, this number is devoted to the "World of Books and Authors." The notable books of the year are reviewed at considerable length, and brief consideration is given to those of less worth.

The first page is given over to a portrait of President Jordan and some extracts from his "The Social Struggle," which is defined as being "unused fragments extracted from a private note book."

THE SOCIAL STRUGGLE.

"There can be no greater injury to the cause of labor than that arising from movements which aim to destroy both fair treatment and loyalty. The 'sympathetic strike,' for example, takes no account of fair play, being directed against those who have given no grievance. It breaks up the feeling of loyalty, as it forces men who have no grievance of their own to rise in insurrection against those in whose service they are."

"Many men look upon the struggle for existence as merely the effort to avoid struggling. Such effort is always difficult and its rewards are uncertain and ephemeral. But the struggle for existence is not necessarily the source of pain or strain to the individual. Life is gentle and sweet to him who lives under the law of the gods. It is as easy to do great things as small if one only knows how."

"The demand for the equality of men, as distinguished from justice, is a disguised hatred of the capable, the wise, and the fortunate. Good and bad fortune is a sort of injustice. Inequality of honest usefulness is the very essence of justice. As men differ in powers and faculties so will their positions in life be different."

"Absolute equality of rights cannot be and should not be, for all men are equal only in the grave."

"The only place where all men are of equal height is the land of pigmies; where all have equal brain power, the asylum for incurable idiots. Equal voice is common only to the dumb; equal insight to the blind. 'In the dark,' says the Spanish proverb, 'the mole has eyes.'"

"Among the duties man owes to himself and to society are those which preserve his moral, physical and intellectual vigor. One of the great needs of our times is the need of social vitality. The burden of civilization is very heavy and without this vitality the burden cannot be sustained."

BOOK REVIEWS.

"Some Recent Memoirs," by the Editor Jerome A. Hart, is the title of a review devoted to some biographies of Tennyson that have appeared recently, "The Life and Letters of Thomas Huxley" and "The Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson." The following from the review of the Huxley Letters is interesting: "All through the letters there runs a vein of delightful humor. Here is a characteristic extract: His younger son, Harry, elopes and marries clandestinely. After a few days the father forgives him and writes, 'We are as happy that you are happy as you can be yourself, though from your letter that seems saying a great deal. I am prepared to be the young lady's slave. Pray tell her that I am a model father-in-law, with my love. By the way, you might mention her name. It is a miserable detail, I know, but would be interesting.'"

Announcement is made that the Orations and Addresses of D. M. Delmas will soon be published by A. M. Robertson.

Doubledry, Page & Co. advertise the publication of "The Octopus" by Mr. Frank Norris. This remarkable novel, though complete in itself, begins a Trilogy, "The Epic of the Wheat," which will form a complete picture of a crop of wheat from its sowing in California, through the Exchange gambling based on it in Chicago, to its relief of a European famine. This story is founded on the "Mussel Slough Affair," when about 1870, the wheat growers of the San Joaquin Valley came to actual war with the railroad (The Octopus) which was trying to dispossess them.

STORYTELLER.

"When a popular young author came to see William M. Everts while he was Secretary of State, in behalf of a consulship for which he was an applicant, Mr. Everts congratulated him on the fame which he had acquired, but hastened to add: 'Although you have laurels on your brows, I suppose you can't browse on your laurels.'"

"When James Whitcomb Riley and 'Bill' Nye traveled together giving a joint entertainment, the humorist had great fun with the poet. Once, in introducing Riley and himself to an audience, Nye remarked: 'I will appear first, and speak until I get tired; then Mr. Riley will succeed me and read from his own words until you get tired.'"

"Cyrus Townsend Brady tells an amusing story, in his 'Recollections of a Missionary in the Great West,' of a little boy he knew on the frontier, who belonged to a family who had trained him to believe in the deep-water form of baptism and was experimenting with the household cat and a bucket of water. The animal evidently did not believe in immersion, for she resisted, bit, and scratched until finally the little boy, with his hands covered with scratches and with tears in his eyes, gave up the effort to effect the regeneration of the cat. 'Doggone you?' he cried, 'go and be an Episcopal cat if you want to!'"

Henry James was once praising the work of a fellow-author. 'You are very kind to him,' said some one present, 'for he says very unpleasant things about your work.' 'Ah,' said Mr. James, 'but, then, both of us may be wrong!'"

AID TO COLONISTS.

New Association to Bring Settlers to this State at Work.

The first regular meeting of the California Colony Association, which proposes to bring colonists to California from all parts of the United States, was held last week at the headquarters of the association in the Academy of Sciences building, San Francisco.

Communications from all parts of the country offering the association hearty support were read.

Many offers of farming land and several requests for men were also received. Lands for sale in any section of the State may be listed with the Secretary free of charge, with a guarantee that full and correct information will be freely furnished to prospective settlers. All communications should be addressed to the California Colony's Information Bureau, Academy of Sciences building, San Francisco. The association will be in operation this week.

In the inner circles of fast paces Joe Patchen has a race against time. Whether started in a high speed time he is the same desperate fighter, never letting up in his speed from the time he gets the word till he goes under the wire. Joe Patchen is not a one-day pacer; he can be depended upon to go a fast mile whenever called upon.

It would be a good thing for buyers of harness if they kept these qualities in mind when buying harness. If they did, they would not buy any old harness that happened along, but would stock up on Wilson's.

After fifteen years of trial, the public has found that he can always be depended upon. Like Joe Patchen, he is a stayer, is always the same, and is sure to give the highest satisfaction, therefore he enjoys the confidence of the people. It pays dealers to sell a high class article that will please their customers. Every harness that he sells will make a new friend or keep an old one. Therefore when in need of anything in the harness line call on Chas. H. Wilson, 920 Main street, Petaluma, where will be found a full selection of harness, whips, robes, sponges, oil, etc.

Pity and Beauty

The most beautiful thing in the world is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain. And the mother does not know that a little fat makes all the difference.

Dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear; the fat, that was comfort and color and curve—all but pity and love—is gone.

The little one gets no fat from her food. There is something wrong; it is either her food or food-mill. She has had no fat for weeks; is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers; and that is gone. She is starving for fat; it is death, be quick!

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the fat she can take; it will save her.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other. If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

A regular meeting of the Sonoma Valley Board of Trade was held last Thursday evening in Weyl's Hall, Dr. A. E. Osborne presiding. There was a goodly number of the members present and a great deal of interest was taken in the proceedings. A committee composed of Dr. H. H. Davis, John Wagoner and J. B. Small was appointed to devise ways and means to secure for this valley the Odd Fellows Home, a new site for which is being hunted up by a committee representing the Grand Lodge of the order.

Further time was granted the Committee on Constitution and By-Laws to make its report. The appointment of a Board of Managers was deferred by President Osborne until the next meeting. The membership is steadily increasing and now reaches nearly a hundred.

HELPED RAISE THE BEAR FLAG.

Harvey Porterfield, a Pioneer of 1838, Dies at His Home Near This Place.

Harvey Porterfield, one of the noble band of patriots who raised the Bear Flag on Thursday night at 10 o'clock, after an illness of many months.

Harvey Porterfield was one of the noble band of patriots who raised the Bear Flag on the Sonoma Plaza on June 14, 1846, thus proclaiming the independence of California over Mexican rule.

On the memorable morning of the raising of the Bear Flag Harvey Porterfield and his companions swooped down on Sonoma, made General Vallejo a prisoner, and then the matter of a flag came up, Porterfield said, needles, thread, some red flannel and blue cloth were procured and the flag was sewed together. A lone star and a bear were then painted on the body of the flag, and it was hoisted to the breeze on a flagstaff that was planted in the ground over the identical spot now occupied by the flag pole owned by the city.

Harvey Porterfield was one of the makers of California. He came to this State in 1838, ten years before the discovery of gold, on mule back, and previous to 1849 crossed and recrossed the plains three times.

He located on the farm where he passed away about fifty years ago and continued to reside there up to the day of his death.

A widow and three sons and three daughters survive him. He was a native of Missouri and aged 78 years.

WINE FOR CHICAGO.

Shipments to Commence Next Week From the Dresel Winery.

All is life and bustle at the Dresel winery. The cause of this activity is several large orders recently received from Chicago for consignments of red and white dry wines from this noted cellar. The coming week four or five carloads will go forward which will be followed by others until the several orders are filled. Mr. Carl Dresel is still in the East introducing his wines in Chicago, New York and other large business centers and are pleased to note that he is meeting with flattering success. Last season large quantities of wine from the Dresel cellars were sold in New Orleans, Chicago and New York and they are rapidly replacing in those cities the so-called French article.

J. F. Kerridge, manager of the Dresel place, who is superintending the shipments, has a large force of men at work hurrying the shipments forward in order to be prepared for other orders from the East.

OFF for Honolulu.

Mrs. Ellen Smith, formerly of this place but who left here for San Francisco eight or ten years ago, left for Honolulu last Wednesday, where her three sons, Willie, Chester and Fred, have provided a home of comfort and ease for her. These young men have prospered since locating in the islands a year or two ago and being bachelors will no doubt be liberal providers for the home which will be presided over by their mother. Mrs. Smith has many old-time friends in Sonoma who remember her as a good woman and kind neighbor, and who wish her happiness and prosperity in her new home.

Father Yorke's Lecture.

A great deal of interest is being taken in the forthcoming visit of Father Yorke to this place. He will lecture at Union Hall on Tuesday evening, April 30th. His subject will be "The Elements of Patriotism," and that it will be handled in a scholarly and pleasing manner goes without saying. The lecture will be of interest to every one as it will be non-sectarian in character and patriotic in principle.

Big Band of Sheep.

Three thousand head of sheep belonging to A. J. Fairbanks of Petaluma are being pastured on the Harden ranch six miles west of this place. They were driven from Fresno county to the Harden ranch last January and have been pastured there during the winter. Feed has been plentiful and the sheep are in remarkable fine condition.

RAN A RUSTY NAIL INTO HIS HAND.

Blood Poisoning Sets in and Jacob Fridger Now Has a Very Bad Arm.

About three weeks ago Jacob Fridger Jr., residing on the Fridger ranch near Glen Ellen, ran a rusty nail into the palm of his right hand. The wound healed rapidly and for a time little attention was paid to it. The other day the hand commenced to swell, the swelling extending up the arm above the wrist, and what at first seemed to be a mere scratch developed into a serious case of blood poisoning. He came to town for medical assistance and is now stopping at the Union Hotel. He is under the care of Dr. Rich, who succeeded in reducing the swelling, which for a time baffled the skill of the doctor. The wound was a most dangerous one, but the hand is now on the mend and all danger from tetanus has passed.

The Opening of the Trout Season.

Local anglers have already commenced digging bait and getting their rods and reels ready for the opening of the trout season next Monday. There will be good fishing in Sonoma creek from the headwaters of that stream clean down to Embarcadero. There is plenty of water in the creek and trout, too, for that matter. This will ensure sport for a hundred fishermen on the opening day. Of course the lucky man gets the fish. The small streams tributary to Sonoma creek are not what they used to be, but for all that there will be some good catches made in them, if not on the opening day a little later on when they are running less water. Ye editor will tackle a small stream this season as usual. It may be the Agua Caliente, Hooker, Rogers, Nathanson, Rixford, Nuns or Fowler creek in this valley or Pieta creek in Mendocino county.

Runaway.

A mare belonging to John Huggett while being tied to a hitching post in front of the Joost place in the western suburbs of town, Wednesday, broke loose and ran into a near by field, where the animal fell and was secured. After being unhitched from the cart to which she was attached, the mare again bolted and ran into town and was again secured. No damage except the breaking of a shaft.

New Ads.

The attention of our readers is called to the following new ads: S. Schocken, our local merchant, has added a new line of shirt waists, millinery, etc., to his large store. F. C. Poulson, the horseshoer, whose shop is located near the Postoffice, makes a specialty of horseshoeing and keeps on hand all kinds of hand-made shoes.

WINE IS WINE.

Last Years' Vintage Has Jumped to Thirty Cents a Gallon—An Increased Demand and Empty Cellars the Cause.

Once again wine is wine. Last year's product has jumped to thirty cents a gallon, the highest price known for years for new wine. This means thirty dollars per ton for grapes next vintage season. The cause of the raise is depleted cellars and the opening up of new markets for California wine.

Not since 1835 has wine commanded anything like that figure. In 1884 wine grapes found ready purchasers at from $30 to $37.50 per ton. Then the price dropped the following year to $20 and from $20 to $15, eventually taking a tumble to $7 per ton in 1898.

The chief cause of this gradual and ruinous drop in the price of wine grapes was over-production caused by too many farmers hastening into the grape-growing and wine-making industry in the hopes of retiring to live on easy street in the course of a few years. The result was a congested market and ruination to many who had staked their all in planting vineyards and building wine-cellar.

The phylloxera, that most destructive of vineyard pests, merely accelerated the disaster which overtook the over-sanguine grape-grower. The result would have been the same even though this bug had not made its appearance, because in those days it was only a question of time when over-production would have knocked the props from under the grape grower anyhow.

Owing to the lessened area planted to vineyards in the wine-producing counties of the State and a slow but steady increase in the demand for our native wine the price of the product has gradually crept up until the figure is now a top notcher.

For the most part the vineyard area of Sonoma Valley, which has been reduced nine-tenths the past fifteen years, is planted with resistant stock and is phylloxera-proof. These resistant vineyards are now in full bearing and with grapes at $30 a ton the owners may well be the envy of the ice man.

Man and Beast.

Nothing can be so terrible to an animal as a human being. There are times when the brute seems to recognize instinctively that man belongs to a higher order of creation and is stricken with a feeling akin to awe in his presence.

In a small African village, some years ago, there was a scare about some leopards which were said to have killed a number of people. Accordingly two white men, accompanied by several natives, set off to hunt them. Presently they found a place in the long grass where it was evident that one of the brutes had recently lain, for the ground was still warm.

The natives formed a ring round it, and the hunters got their guns ready. After a little while the leopard emerged from the long grass and was fired at and wounded, but not fatally. With a great bound he sprang on one of the white men and brought him to the ground. Holding his victim, he turned and growled savagely at the others.

The natives gave a wild yell of fear, and then like a shot the leopard sprang away. He had not been frightened by the guns, but by the yell terrified him.—Youth's Companion.

Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism.

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N. C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. FOR MALARIA, CHILLS AND FEVER.The Best Prescription Is Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The Formula Is Plainly Printed on Every Bottle, So That the People May Know Just What They Are Taking.

Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called "Tasteless" chill tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.

HOW CHARLES W. BABCOCK

Proprietor Lyceum Shell Oyster Parlor, of Rochester, N. Y.
Obtained $2,000 Life Insurance Policy.

"My business as proprietor of the Lyceum Shell Oyster Parlor, 245 Main street, Rochester, N. Y.," writes Mr. Charles W. Babcock, "was so confining that my lungs became affected. My doctor told me I'd have to leave the store and go to work at something outdoors. He said my lungs were in bad shape, and I knew it just as well as he did. The trouble had been growing on me for a long time. Like most other people, I tried to make myself believe the trouble was not in the lungs. I called it stomach trouble or nervous disorder, but I got coughing, spitting and wasting away right along. I lost in weight, falling from 140 to 115 pounds. Somehow or other, I got hold of Acker's English Remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, and after taking it according to directions, I was as well as any man in New York State. I was healthier and stronger than before I took the cold which came so near killing me. I now weigh 150 pounds more than ever. After recovering, I applied for a life insurance policy. When the doctor began examining me, I was afraid he would discover that my lungs had once been affected, but he didn't. I passed all right, and was pronounced in a first-class condition. If that isn't proof of the most positive kind that Acker's English Remedy is a great medicine, I don't know what you call proof. I give it my warmest endorsement. My address is given above. Anyone who wishes may write me personally about my case."

Sold at 25c, 50c and $1 a bottle, throughout the United States and Canada; and in England, at 1s, 2s, 3s, 4s, 5s, 6s, 7s, 8s, 9s, 10s, 11s, 12s, 13s, 14s, 15s, 16s, 17s, 18s, 19s, 20s, 21s, 22s, 23s,
